

the LITTLE SHOP OF

HORRORS

J.R. WILLIAMS * GENE FAMA * KILIAN PLUNKETT

Kids, be sure to pick up the latest copy of -

From your pals at MARVEL & Spümcø!

ARE YOU CRAZY? LISTEN, MUSHNIK-THAT'S PROBABLY THE ONLY PLANT OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD -- IF SEYMOUR CAN NURSE
IT BACK TO HEALTH, PEOPLE WILL BE COMING HERE FROM ALL OVER!

É KEVIN O'NEILL – PAT MILLS – TONY SKINNER – FRANGISCO SOLANO LÓPEZ É

MORIARITY -KOZIK - DAVID GHEISEA - ELIEN FORNEY - GOOD - JAY STEPHENS - T

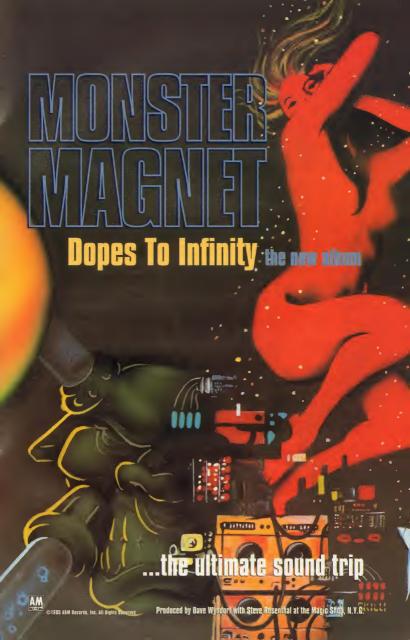

SANTA CRUZ

Tim Brauch clears a gap on the most exhilarates, and dangerous joy-riding device this side of the hot red.

P.O. Box:2718 Sunta Cric., CA. 95063-2718 408.459.7800 fax 408.459.7820 SAN SAGE VEZ too much movie breeds mayben in the streets.

INÉMA VERITÉ

BEHIND THE SCENES AT

the LITTLE SHOP OF

Putting together a comic book

like Welcome to the Little Shop of Horrors involves the work of many talents. Step one is hiring a writer, and in this case, the writer has to be funny — a surprisingly rare quality in comic book writers. appear all over the place (Heavy Metal, Rip Off Comix, Real Stuff, Buzzard, The Duplex Planet Hustrated, etc.) The guy is prolific, possessed of a hard-core puritan work-ethic, and personally very low-key. If you met him just once, you'd never guess he was so funny, and you certainly wouldn't guess he plays guitar in a band called the Sin managing corporate pension plan portfolios, sits down and draws funnybooks. Gene grew up in Chicago and studied art in New York. He published some work in Psycho Comics and Pure Entertainment Quarterly in 1980, then laid off comics for a while. Then as the '90s dawned, he slowly got into it again, doing small jobs for Vertigo and Fantagraphics (most notably in the comic Real Stuff).

Gene gets the scripts from J.R., and then adds his own creative spin on the story. He plays with "camera" angles and page layout, and has given the characters the specific look with which we now identify them. In a few cases, Gene has come up with good suggestions for changing dialogue to fit something he wants to draw. And this is just what I want — the artists are, after all, collaborating with the writer to tell the story.

Once Gene has finished the pencils, they are lettered by Nick Craine, a young Canadian letterer who is also an accomplished comic book creator in his own right (see his excellent Dance Me Outside graphic novel). Nick letters the pages and then they are sent to the inker.

The inker in this case is Dean Rohrer, a New Jersey carbonist and hard-core follower of the EC school of comics art. Dean primarily works as an illustrator for book publishers but his love of comics has gradually brought him into the comics world over the past few years, doing comic stories in The Duplex Planet Illustrated and work for Mirated.

J.R. Williams is a brilliant cartoonist in his own right who had never actually written a comic book for someone else to draw. But we were convinced on the basis of his own work that he was the right guy for the job. J.R. has been drawing comics for years, and recently made the jump to being a full-time cartoonist. Prior to that, he was an animator at Will Vinton Studios (remember the California Raisins?) in Portland, Oregon.

J.R. now lives in Seattle, Washington, where he draws his ongoing comic Crap for Fantagraphics Books, and has done a tombor of the rool to book (Bummer, Fun House, Bad Boys, Bad Comics) and has had stories

Alley Cats.

Because J.R. badn't written connect for other artists before, I suggested he "write" the script by doing very rough drawings of all the action and dialogue. This method worked great. This script was such a lively piece of carrooning that we could have almost printed it as is. But since we wanted much more realistic and detailed type of art, we called in Gene Farna to pencil.

Welcome to the Little Shop of Horrors.

Gene has one of the most unusual backgrounds of any artist it counts. He only moonlights at trawing comics. His day job is... urvestment banker! Gene Fama comes home after a hard day of Horrors! We hope you liked it. Next month, we'll tell you a little about the original Roger Corman movie on which this comic is based. See you then!

-Robert Boyd

Dean takes the penciled and lettered pages and in inking them, gives the figures and backgrounds the weight and solidity needed. Inking might seem to the layman to be a rather mechanical job of tracing over the penciler's lines. But inkers are the craftsmen who turn a comic into a finished work. A good inker is a master of the extremely demanding art of drawing with a paintbrush, as well as being paintbrush, as well as being proficient in various types of pens. Finally, it goes to the colorist. For this job, we hired Cary Porter, a Fortland sculptor and colorist who has done a lot of coloring for Dark Horse Comics. He provided us with a color guide, which is a hand-colored photocopy of every page with color codes. This color guide and the black and white artwork are given to a computer coloring firm (in this case, Jamison Services), where the line art is electronically scanned into a computer, and trained computer colorists, using the color guide, fill in the colors on

And I'd be very negligent if I didn't mention our cover painter Kilian Plunkett. Kilian is deep in a huge Star Wars comic book project right now, but he's well known for his work on Aliens: Lobyrinth and his many covers for Dark Horse.

Kilian was born in Ireland and now lives in an apartment in rainy downtown Portland, where on the rare clear day he can see Mount St. Helens.

Whew, a lot of labor went into Welcome to the Little Shop of Next issue: Seymour visits the sadistic dentist, Dr. Farb!

CHOKEBORE

NEW ALBUM

ANYTHING NEAR WATER

ON AMPHETAMINE REPTILE

COSMICESIGNALS

May comics from Roger Corman's Cosmic Comics; Velcome To The Little Shop Of Horrors #1 Death Race 2020 #2 Brain Stoker's Burial of the Rats #2

IVO IV — it's month two of the inevitable takeover of your mind by Roger Corman's Cosmic Comics, and we hope you're enjoying every brain-sucking second of it! From time to time, we intend to introduce you to some of our inmates.— er, staff, and since my birthday's in May, I'll start off.

ROBERT BOYD by Gene Fam

Born in Australia in 1963.
Grew up in Houston, Texas.
Started reading comics in 7th grade. Early favorite comics were Howard the Duck, Daredevil, and Heavy Metal. Drew and
self-published photocopied comics. Some titles were Super Ghost, Glue Guy, and Possidon the comics for a while. Reintroduced to them in college. Studied art. Read comics like American Flaggl, Love & Rockets, Fabulous Furry Freak Brothers, V for Vendetta, Bot a job and worked in Africa, Europe, South America. Dug way-out foreign comics like (A Suivre), El Vlabora, and Fierro. Standed reading RAW and other artsy-fartsy comics. Game back to America. Wrote some articles about comics for The Comics Journal. (Still write a column for them occasionally) Got a job with Fantagraphics. Edited a bunch of books and appranticed in the comics biz. Moved to Dark Horse and learned more about making comics. Got the call from Roger Corman. Moved to Hollywood. The rest is history!

-Robert Boyd

.Our Founday I has I CORMAN

By the time you read this, will have had our first Coamic.
Comics event—a signing at the legendary Golden Apple store in Los Angeles. Paul Bartel, Mary Woronov, and the man himself.
Roger Corman signed comics and movie stills for adoring fane. If you're ever in LA, bleck out Golden Apple at 7711 Melrose in Hollywood — one of the best comic stores anywhere!

This month, we're trying to set up signings in Oregon, and

ON THE HORIZON -

Check out our newest art flick Attack of the 60 Foot Centeriold

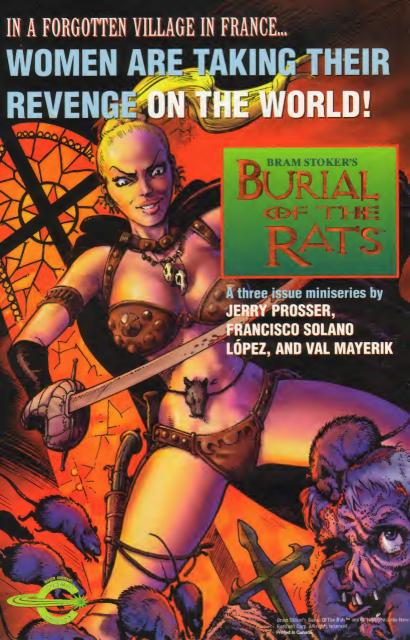

COMICS COMING NEXT FALL!

Caged Heat 3000 — Women in prison in the future. What more do

Rock 'n' Roll High School - The

Here's a sneak preview from Caged Heat 3000 with art by Matt Thompson and Dan Schaeffer

ROGER CORMAN PRESENTS
WELCOME TO

the LITTLE SHOP OF

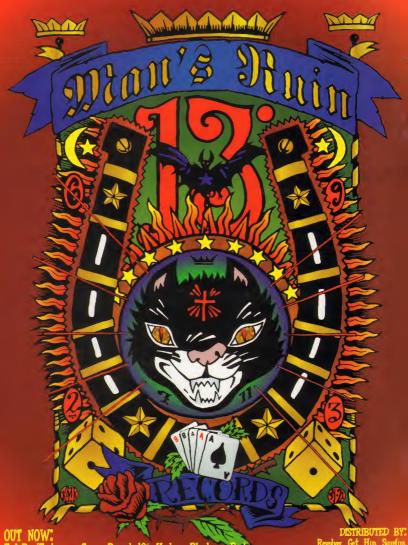

CORRESPONDENCE

TO SHOP OF

adapted by J.R. WILLIAMS ❖ pencils by GENE FAMA ❖ inks by DEAN ROHRER ❖ covers by KILIAN PLUNKETT ❖ lettering by NICK CRAINE ❖ colors by CARY PORTER ❖ edited by ROBERT BOYD ❖ design by BARRY E. EAMES ❖ director of publishing MARCUS BASTIDA

Welcome to the Little Shop of Horrors is adapted from the film The Little Shop of Horrors written by Charles B. Griffith and directed by Roger Corman.

New Heritopis Girps, All Contents, unless otherwise specified, one of 1905 Googet-Pow Heritopis Girps, State Makers Black, Black 40, Lot Angelec CL 1905 All Report Contents in a division of Concerning Contents and Contents and

OUT NOW:

E.A.R. [Featuring Sonic Booml 10". Useless Playboys Picture
Disc. Dwarves Farewell 7". Blag Dahlia 7"
COMING SOON. Dale Crover [Melvins] Solo 7". Killdozer/Ritual
Device split 10". And Singles by. Steel Pole Bethtub. The Tards.
Pervis. Outside Inside. and plenty more!

DISTRIBUTED BY:
Revolver. Get Hip. Surdine.
or direct from us.
MANS RUIN RECORDS
2948 20th Street 101
Ph. (415) 824 * 4410
Fur. (415) 642 - 7971

ILLUSTRATION 1995 KOZIK / DIGITAL IMAGING & COLOR 1995 BUNKER SUICIDE / RUBENSTEIN